Dear Woutrina,

Hope all is well. Looking forward for our collaboration.
I'm introducing Ave Pold, who will be our focal point for the PPE study.
She will get back to you soon with the study design and next steps !

Thanks Tana. Nelson, it would indeed be great to follow up with you this week. I think I owe you some ideas on collaboration as part of our expression of interest for the longer-term, and I think you said you would be following up with us on your ideas and needs as it relates to the virtual reality PPE pilot. Please share thoughts when ready and I'll do the same as I work down my to do list. Best wishes, Woutrina

Hi WHO team,

It was indeed a very good first call last week when we started to share ideas and plan for moving virtual training forward with our various academy ideas. I think we left with two action items:

1. Our USAID One Health Workforce Project would share an expression of interest document and follow up information as needed to help us align possible modes of collaboration going forward.

Progress: I'm sharing the websites for SEAOHUN and AFROHUN (formerly OHCEA) below, as well as the link to the first semi-annual report that we put out recently. It may be helpful to familiarize your team with One Health university network ideas, activities and partners. Next week I will send you a more formal expression of interest document where we outline some ideas on collaboration.

SEAOHUN website: <https://www.seaohun.org/>

AFROHUN website: <https://afrohun.org/>

One Health Workforce – Next Generation Semi-annual Report 2020: SAR.onehealthworkforce.org

2. WHO team would share ideas on the approach and needs for comparing the virtual reality PPE training with live and written training modalities, while OHW-NG Project would update the AFROHUN and SEAOHUN teams of the potential to collaborate by engaging and providing training sites.

Progress: I have reached out to the Africa One Health University Network (AFROHUN) and the Southeast Asia One Health University Network (SEAOHUN) teams to let them know there may be possibilities to collaborate over time, and one immediate need is to identify training sites for the PPE training innovation pilot study. We will be talking with both AFROHUN and SEAOHUN teams this week so can likely get at least the initial green light for moving this forward, and we will look forward to further details from WHO team in order to plan next steps. My thought is that for Africa region we could identify sites in one of our East Africa and one West African country (perhaps Uganda and Cameroon depending on if you have a preference for French or no?), and for Southeast Asia we could also suggest two possible countries from the network, perhaps Malaysia and Vietnam, that would have interest in the pilot study.

Best wishes, Woutrina

Subject: Notes from Initial Meeting: One Health Workforce Academy & WHO-Academy

Greetings,

Many thanks for your participation in yesterday's introductory meeting. I appreciated learning more about WHO-Academy's progress and current activities. Specific action items are:

1. The USAID-supported One Health Workforce Academy will submit an expression of interest to collaborate with WHO-Academy with emphasis on topics where actions will have synergistic influence, including curated curriculum for competency-based One Health training, Competency assessment strategies and tools, certification and credentialing, and advanced instruction delivery modes including hybrid online/in-person systems.
2. Within the week, One Health Workforce Academy will nominate specific sites within the AFROHUN and SEAOHUN network of universities that are affiliated with hospitals and One Health-oriented facilities for inclusion in WHO-Academy's project to use Virtual Reality as a way to deliver training in Personal Protective Equipment (PPE).
3. One Health Workforce Academy will assist the dissemination of The WHO-Academy "app" within the AFROHUN and SEAOHUN university networks to promote access and subscriptions.
4. Continuation of meetings and other communication forums to ensure that the principals of WHO-Academy and One Health Workforce Academy explore opportunities for sustained collaboration as the virtual infrastructure of both Academies are developed and implemented.

Please feel free to add to these items if I missed anything, and certainly feel free to post questions and suggestions.

Best wishes for the weekend, and stay healthy and safe.

Greetings,

I am looking forward to our discussion at 8:00am (Pacific Time) tomorrow Thursday 25 June.

Many thanks to Alexandra for introducing the One Health Workforce team to the WHO Academy team. Thanks also to Maria for sending the zoom link (see below).

We have only 30 minutes for this initial meeting, and we will spend the time productively.

Our main goal is to explore potential synergy between the envisioned One Health Workforce Academy (currently being funded by USAID in two regional networks in Africa and Southeast Asia) and WHO-Academy. Both Academies are in planning stages with targets to formally launch publicly at about the same time next year. To guide our discussion, I suggest the following agenda items:

1. Brief introductions
2. Information about the structure, function, and target audience of WHO Academy. I have attached to this email a brochure published in May was shared by David W. Lowrance (WHO) through our colleague Bruce Struminger.
3. Brief description of our vision for the One Health Workforce Academy.
4. Open discussion of convergent goals and aspirations, and opportunities for collaboration.
5. Action items, and plans for follow-up meeting, including Jim Campbell, and others as needed.

Best wishes.

- Dele

Hello Tana!

Long time no see. I have delighted to see your LinkedIn updates on the WHO Academy and hear positive updates generally about the work of the Directorate from Carey. It's really impressive to see all that you are doing.

As it turns out, I just reached out to Jim to follow-up on a discussion we had last year, to explore ways to collaborate between the WHO Academy and a "OneHealth Academy" we are creating out of a five year, $85 million USAID initiative. See below.

Perhaps we could connect with you first to explore this and reconnect with Jim when he's back in the office? We can send you some early materials that describe the concept a bit more as well.

Looking very forward to the chance to reconnect with you!

Greetings Jim!

I hope you are well amidst the pandemic. A big congratulations on the release of the State of the World's Nursing Report!

I'm not sure if I alerted you that we did indeed win the USAID OneHealth Workforce Next Generation initiative, of which you and I spoke in March of last year. The initiative falls under USAID's Global Health Security Program.

We are proceeding with the development of a OneHealth Academy as we talked about in that meeting, a curated and modular system of online and in-person educational content that is tied to OneHealth competencies and certification for the Africa and SE Asia regions.

You had suggested some ways to synergize between the WHO Academy and this OneHealth Academy, and we'd like to follow-up with you to discuss that further. We are at the design stage now, and intend to launch a beta version by September, 2020.

My colleague Dr. Oladele Ogunseitan of University of California - Riverside is leading effort. Would you and anyone on your staff be available for a Zoom call on this over the next couple of weeks? I'd be happy to set one up with myself, Dele, and co-Directors of our initiative.

Looking very forward to seeing you again, Jim!

Warmly,
Alexandra
